TEXAS BUSINESSMAN HAS ENOUGH NUCLEAR MISSILES TO BLOW AWAY SOUTH DAKOTA!

By MIKE FOSTER
Weekly World News

HOUSTON, Texas — A hardcore right-to-bear-arms advocate is daring the federal government to try to take away his private stash of nuclear missiles!

"Sure, the feds can have my nukes — when they pry them out of my cold, dead hands," vows longtime activist Donald J. Templow who says he obtained his surplus Russian warheads on the black market and built his own rockets to deliver them.

The maverick businessman, who has spent at least half of his 52 years battling anti-gun laws, insists he is perfectly within his rights to keep the weapons — even though, by his own admission, they could annihilate an area the size of South Dakota.

"The Second Amendment to the U.S. Constitution says in black and white, 'The right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed,'" he argues.

"The Founding Fathers didn't limit that to handguns and rifles — they meant any kind of arms."

The four Russian arms-surplus SLBMs ended up on the black market in Eastern Europe after the collapse of the old Soviet Union. An associate of the megabucks businessman bought the nukes from a cartel of cash-strapped former Russian army officers for about $400,000.

Templow refuses to divulge exactly how he got the weapons into the United States, or where he is storing them on his sprawling 12,000-acre ranch.

He also won't reveal the exact megatonnage of the warheads, but brags that his rockets "have enough combined firepower to create an 80,000-square-mile crater."

The gun-slinging tycoon claims he needs the H-bomb arsenal for his own protection.

"If Mexico invades the U.S. and there are suddenly hordes of wetback troops heading my way, I'm not waiting for any weak-kneed, indecisive action in Washington to take action," he declared.

Frustrated government officials say they are investigating Templow, but admit they don't know how to handle the unique case.

"The law can't touch him as of now because we have never actually seen the weapons in his possession and therefore have no actual proof he's violated state or federal statutes," said an insider at the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Although authorities doubt that Templow has the capacity to launch nuclear missiles, they worry that the rockets may have been damaged during transportation and there might be leakage.

"Weapons-grade plutonium is highly radioactive — pound for pound, it's the most lethal substance known to man," said the ATF insider.

"This is a very, very dangerous situation."

'The law can't touch him,' says horrified Fed!

There was this Christian lady that had to do a lot of flying for her business but flying made her nervous. So she always took her Bible along with her to read and it helped relax her.

One time she was sitting next to a man. When he saw her pull out her Bible he gave a little chuckle and went back to what he was doing. After awhile he turned to her and asked, "You don't really believe all that stuff in there do you?"

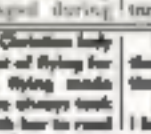
He said, "Well what about that guy that was swallowed by that whale?"

She replied, "Oh, Jonah. Yes I believe that, it is in the Bible."

Then he asked, "Well, how do you suppose he survived all that time inside the whale?"

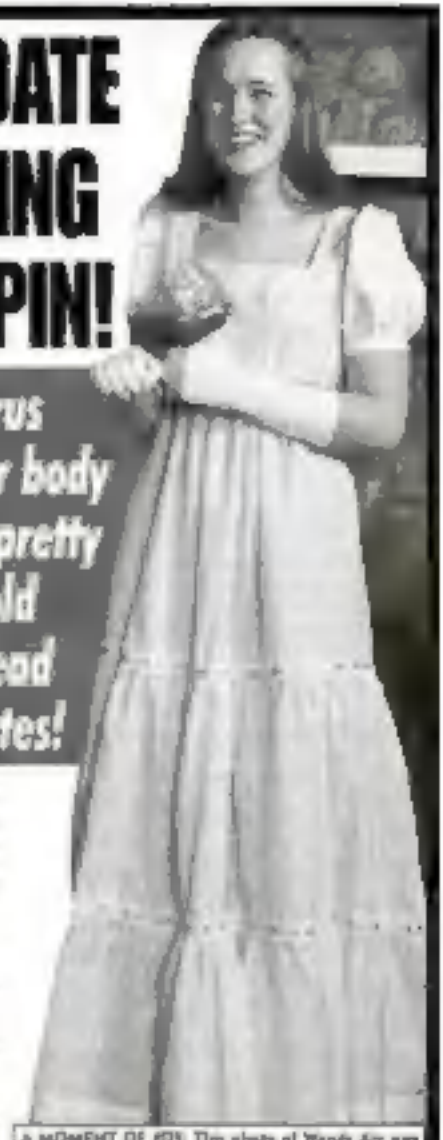
The lady said, "Well I don't really know. I guess when I get to Heaven I will ask him."

"But what if he isn't in Heaven?" the man asked curiously.



DEVASTATED boyfriend Jimmy McHearnen

TEEN KILLS HIS PROM DATE BY ACCIDENTALLY JABBING HER WITH A CORSAGE PIN!



By MITCH JOHNSON Weekly World News

ATLANTA — A prom date ended in tragedy when teenager Wendy Aix died from a fast-acting lethal virus — that entered her body when her new boyfriend accidentally stuck her with a corsage pin!

Wendy, 16, died of a massive internal hemorrhage after her overanxious beau, 17-year-old Jimmy McHearnen, jabbed her with the pin while trying to attach a rose corsage to her gown.

A source at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta said preliminary findings indicate the girl's death was caused by "a super hantavirus" similar to the one that killed 11 people in New Mexico in June 1993.

"The virus grows in the hot, moist areas of South America," the CDC researcher said. "We traced the roses and found they were imported through Colombia.

"What disturbs us most is that this mutation is so virulent that it kills in minutes, unlike the New Mexico outbreak that took two days."

Doctors say the hantavirus apparently entered the girl's body through the puncture wound created by the corsage pin.

"The family had no way of knowing about the virus," said a paramedic who arrived at the Aix home moments after the girl fell ill.

"Her mother said they were all laughing at Jimmy for being so clumsy and Wendy was upset at him for sticking her.

"They observed a small amount of blood on her dress and were finishing taking pictures when Wendy said she felt nauseous and wanted to sit down.

"Apparently she sat there for two minutes and then fell over onto the floor.

"By the time we arrived, she was dead.

"There was nothing we could do."

Authorities were quick to point out that this is the first known case of the virus being carried by flowers.

"We don't believe it's necessary to ban importing flowers from South America, but people should use caution when handling them," one specialist said.

A deadly virus entered her body — and the pretty 18-year-old dropped dead within minutes!

A MOMENT OF JOY: This photo of Wendy Aix was taken just seconds before she was pricked with the rose corsage pin that contained a deadly virus.

The hairy truth about space aliens!

WASHINGTON — The old notion that space aliens are naturally bald with hairless bodies may have to be revised, say UFO researchers.

Investigators note that a mysterious chemical has been found in containers at many UFO crash sites — and years of study indicates that it serves no purpose other than to help strip hair from skin.

Mom sells 10-month-old son — so she could get a nose job!

VIENNA, Austria — A woman was arrested for trying to sell her 10-month-old son to an undercover cop for $5,000 — so she could get a nose job!

Thirty-two-year-old single mom Lena Holtzmann told police she "hated her looks." She said she feared she was aging and would never attract another man.

"I've been taking care of that boy 24 hours a day for almost a year," she said.

"I wanted to do something for myself. I'm not ashamed of what I did."

Holtzmann's plan was foiled when the undercover cop she approached to buy the child turned out to be a police officer.

Police Chief Inspector Hans Kuhn said the case, "the richest one I ever worked."

"I've heard of mothers selling their kids for food, even drugs," he said.

"But for plastic surgery?

"She's the most cold-blooded person I ever ran across in 25 years on the job."

Woman cons beauty out of $98,000 — by pretending to be a guy!

ACCUSED CON ARTIST Barbara Morrow has been charged with theft by deception & receiving stolen property.

Romance lasts 4 long years — and lonely divorcee never suspects a thing!

By MICHAEL FORSYTH/Weekly World News

BELLEFONT, Pa. — Cops say a lady con artist with a husky voice swindled another woman out of $98,000 by wooing her over the telephone — while pretending to be a man!

Attractive victim Linda Vangeler was swept off her feet by the deep-voiced caller who used the name Randy Dillard. And the long-distance romance went on for four years before she discovered to her horror that her hunky young "boyfriend" was really a middle-aged woman named Barbara Morrow.

By that time, Linda had turned over every penny she had to the scam artist, authorities say.

"Barbara Morrow has been charged with theft by deception and receiving stolen property," Centre County Assistant District Attorney Lance Marshall told Weekly World News.

Linda, a lonely divorcee in her mid-fifties, first encountered "Randy" in 1998 while surfing the channels of her CB radio in search of company.

The two hit it off immediately and before long, they were chatting by phone or CB up to six times a day.

Smooth-talking Randy, who claimed to be a prisoner in a Dallas jail, soon began to hit Linda up for cash, cops say.

"She was told he needed money for his defense, for bail, for a lawyer, for the food that prison guards doctored up to be as awful as possible," Marshall.

Head-over-heels in love with her unseen lover, Linda gladly turned over all her life savings — as well as credit card advances, retirement funds and money borrowed against her life insurance. She never saw Randy in person, but when she asked for a photo, crafty Barbara sent her the picture of a muscular hunk, authorities say.

Cops say that Barbara even made trips to Linda's home to pick up cash, using a different voice and claiming to be a "go between."

Finally, love-struck Linda turned over her last chunk of cash — a $60,000 lump sum from a divorce settlement — and went completely bankrupt.

"Her bankruptcy attorney later looked into the situation and advised her to go to the police," said Marshall.

Investigators quickly discovered that "Randy" was really Barbara, a 48-year-old woman living on disability checks just down the road from Linda's home.

Barbara, who has pleaded not guilty, was awaiting trial at press time.

8 WAYS TO PUT THE SIZZLE BACK IN YOUR SEX LIFE!

By JUNE SAWYER
Weekly World News

Many couples are hit by a sudden loss of sexual desire that lasts for weeks or months — but you can beat the sexual doldrums and put the fire back in your love-making, says an expert.

"The American Psychiatric Association estimates that 20 percent of the population, both male and female, have little desire for sexual intercourse at any given time," said Dr. Anthony Pietropinto.

Depression and worry are the biggest causes of inhibited sexual desire, he said.

Money problems, problems at work, a death in the family or even a new baby at home can clutter up the brain so much that the worried mind can't focus on romance.

Also, it's common for sex to become mundane for couples that have been sleeping together for a long while — though the age of the couples matters less than the age of the relationship.

For example, middle-aged love-birds starting out on a second marriage may be more frisky than a young pair who've been together five or six years.

How do you put the tiger back in your partner's tank? Dr. Pietropinto suggests that:

1. Don't nag or complain about being deprived of sex.
2. Concentrate on the quality of your love-making, not the quantity.
3. Break your sexual routine. Plan an escapade away from home in a quaint motel — or create a seductive atmosphere in your own bedroom.
4. Duplicate a particularly memorable occasion that turned on your partner.
5. Make your partner feel desired — pay plenty of compliments.
6. Work to remove any distractions that are troubling your mate.
7. Try wearing sexy nightclothes to bed — or nothing at all.
8. "The more desirable you make yourself as a person and as a lover," said Dr. Pietropinto, "the more your mate is likely to once again feel that old strong desire for you."

If you owe the bank $100, that's your problem. If you owe the bank $100 million, that's the bank's problem.

Painting of John the Baptist has real body odor!

IT STINKS TO HIGH HEAVEN

MIRACLE painting of John the Baptist by Nicolai Bulanin was completed in 1380, but only recently began to smell

KIEV, Russia — A painting of John the Baptist that has hung in a chapel here for more than 400 years has begun to give off real body odor, church officials say.

By ALEXANDER SWANSON
World News

Since the sacred painting in the Russian Orthodox church began to emit the distinctly human B.O. last December, thousands of the faithful have flocked to the chapel to witness the miracle. "The image of John smells just like a live, sweaty man," says Italian businessman Benito Cardoza, 61, who traveled thousands of miles to get a whiff of the amazing work of art.

Others who have been up close and personal with the life-size image by famed Russian artist Nicolai Bulanin have described the aroma as inevitable and almost overpoweringly strong, "like a conversion to animal odor."

Bible experts call this highly significant. That's because the New Testament depicts John the Baptist as a hard-athletic who wandered the desert wilderness for months at a time without bathing, dressed in "raiment of camel's hair" (Matthew 3:4).

"The odor that witnesses describe perfectly matches what the prophet would have smelled like in life," says noted theologian Arthur Vodsky, who has investigated the extraordinary phenomenon.

The painting of John the Baptist has stood in the chapel in St. Martin's Basilica since 1380 and up until last year, it exhibited no supernatural properties.

Then on New Year's Eve, 1998, an elderly parishioner named Klara Filippovic was alone in the chapel kneeling and praying quietly when she began to detect a potent male smell. She sniffed around for several minutes before identifying the source.

"At first I thought I was imagining things, then I realized the stink really was coming from the blessed image of the saint," says Mrs. Filippovic, 71.

Since then, church officials say more than 21,000 visitors have come to pay homage to the painting, some making pilgrimages from as far away as Texas. Every day lines of those hoping the image will bring them good fortune snap around the block at which the usual, non-theistic church ota.

"If you get within three feet of the painting — and believe me, that's as close as you'd want to go — there's no mistaking what you are smelling," says Father Vadimir Gorodkin, rector of the church.

Experts on religious miracles call the phenomenon unique. "There are numerous documented cases of religious icons crying and even bleeding before, but this is the only instance I'm aware of a painting developing B.O.," said Bible scholar Vodsky.

The Vatican has reportedly dispatched its own team of investigators to verify the miracle.

Mystery hot seat burns buns of eatery patrons!

PARIS — Bewildered scientists admit they can't explain why a chair at a restaurant mysteriously heats up to 700 degrees Fahrenheit each evening, making it impossible for patrons to sit on it for dinner.

The strange "hot seat" at La Republique restaurant has been acting up for three years, but the owners keep it around as a conversation piece.

"Some brave customers compete to see who can tolerate sitting in the chair the longest," says waiter Jacques Bergon. "No one has lasted more than a minute."

20-ton prehistoric beast attacks as scientists release it from captivity

BRASILIA, Brazil — Award-winning Weekly World News journalist Anwar Basarah has been eaten alive — by a bloodthirsty, 30-foot dinosaur!

Basarah, 38, was killed by the 20-ton Iguanadon — a lumbering reptile previously believed to have been extinct for 75 million years — as the reporter covered scientists' efforts to study the prehistoric beast in a remote part of the Amazon jungle.

"The thing moved like lightning. It snapped Anwar up in its jaws and swallowed him in just two gulps," said freelance photojournalist Raul Sanchez, who caught the fatal attack on film.

Colleagues of the veteran newsman were shaken to hear of the tragedy.

"Anwar was one of the best," NEWS Editor Bunny Andrews said. "He was not only a brilliant reporter, he was a friend. He will be greatly missed."

The massive, armor-skinned Iguanadon — an ancestor of the modern-day iguana — was discovered last summer by a skilled team of British and American researchers who were conducting a routine survey of reptiles and amphibians in the deep, nearly impenetrable jungle north of Brasilia. When they found gigantic footprints on a muddy riverbank, they knew at once they had stumbled onto the scientific discovery of all time.

"We'd all seen similar footprints in fossil form, but these were obviously fresh," recalls British reptile expert Dr. Jonathan Gault, leader of the research team. "It was obvious to us that these prints were made by a real, live dinosaur — even though, of course, they were all supposed to have died out long before the dawn of man.

"As confused as we were, we were quite excited — because we knew that if a few of them had survived all these years, they were probably hiding out in a place just like this."

The scientists tracked the creature down and when they first encountered it, Australian zoologist Dr. Richard Mears was bitten and killed by the ferocious animal.

Dr. Jonathan Gault

A few days later, the researchers were able to subdue and capture the dinosaur using powerful tranquilizers and a live goat as bait. The snarling beast was caged in a large wooden shelter.

"Unfortunately, we discovered that an animal so uniquely adapted to its environment could not survive removal from the jungle," said Dr. Gault, of London. "Instead, it often refused to eat the butchered meat we provided and it failed to thrive. Within a few months, the Iguanadon had become dangerously underweight."

This spring, the researchers reluctantly announced plans to return the creature to the wild. Reporter Basarah and Brazilian photographer Sanchez drove by Jeep to the camp, to cover the remarkable event. On the morning of April 18, the researchers cautiously opened the cage that had been built in a jungle clearing to house the creature, and it ambled out.

"I started to snap pictures as soon as the dinosaur emerged," Sanchez said. "Then Anwar said he wanted to get a picture of himself standing next to the dinosaur. The scientists tried to wave him away, but he ran over and got into position.

"The animal just reached down and grabbed his whole head and half his chest in its mouth."

Even though the dinosaur has now claimed two lives and is roaming the jungle free, Dr. Gault insists the risky research will continue.

"It will, of course, be challenging to try to study the Iguanadon in its natural habitat," he said. "But we hope to learn even more about dinosaur behavior by observing it in the wild."

A funeral for Mr. Basarah was attended by more than 700 mourners. The journalist will Whiz kid does taxes for dad's company — & saves $200,000 a year!

HE KICKS IRS BUTT!

By RANDY JEFFRIES · Weekly World News

NEW YORK CITY — Eight-year-old math whiz Mikey Caliber saved his dad's business more than $200,000 this past year alone — by doing the company's taxes!

Chairman and CEO David Caliber says he was able to give employees of his multimillion-dollar investment counseling firm $80,000 in bonuses and bank an additional $120,000 in savings.

"My son has been doing our corporate tax returns since he was 4 and each year he saves us more money," Caliber says. "He finds creative but perfectly legal deductions that our [retained] certified public accountants never came up with."

David got the idea of using Mikey for the job one April night in 1987 when the youngster presented eight to the Caliber father for a late-night tax session. The two of them were going over the complex company tax return when little Mikey, then only 5, walked over after taking a quick glance at the computer screen, the boy said, "That tax savings band is listed in the wrong column."

The stunned accountant quickly admitted Mikey was correct and made the change.

"I couldn't believe it," David said.

"I'd always known Michael was bright in math, and I'd seen him reading through my books on corporate taxation — but I never realized he was actually absorbing the stuff.

"Just for fun, after that, returns had been filed and things had calmed down, I gave him copies of the receipts, the 1099s and other forms, just to see how he would have handled them.

"To my astonishment, he found expenses and investments that could have been deducted and weren't — things that never occurred to our CPA.

"The next year, the CPA was not just Mikey was in."

Widower David, 36, says that in most ways, Mikey is a normal, red-blooded boy who loves fishing, baseball and Nintendo.

But when it comes to the IRS he doesn't think or talk like a kid at all. He sounds like a very wise adult.

"It's really easy for me," he says. "I don't know why but the whole concept of money and tax law is very simple to me. I'm not a genius, I'm just good at it.

"Lots of people hate doing tax forms but I love it. It makes me feel great to see dad so happy."

And David says he can't imagine what his business would do without Mikey come tax time.

"I count him," he says.

"Next year, I may even decide to pay him more than the $4 allowance he gets each week."

He's famous for that fabulous head of black hair and you can see it in all his recent movies that he still has it.

BARBECUE THE BEST MEALS YOU'VE EVER TASTED — WHILE YOU DRIVE!

By MIKE FOSTER

ORLANDO, Fla. -- You can get the most out of your gas dollars and make delicious meals for the whole family by wrapping your food in magnetic foil — and cooking it on your car engine while you drive!

Whip up scrumptious steaks, chops, chicken & veggies — and cook 'em under the hood!

Thousands of thrifty Americans are already using the novel way to save time and money and they swear by what they call "motor meals."

"I've baked potatoes, cooked Cornish hens, grilled vegetables — even barbecued hot dogs with my Eagle Vision," the results have been fantastic," said Jean Mann and Carroll Jones. "Meanwhile I can cross this way the heat doesn't escape and spoil my plans to "cook all day."

Long distance truck drivers have been using the technique for years, but it's caught on more recently, as gas prices have soared. Last year when they have gotten hooked on motor meals. So many people nationwide have tried it, a car company survey shows.

It was inevitable that ordinary folks would catch on to the idea sooner or later, as gas prices have soared. Last year when they have gotten hooked on motor meals. So many people nationwide have tried it, a car company survey shows.

Gutwrenching news for gals: Stress can cause potbellies!

Relax, ladies, and slim down — because stress causes women to develop potbellies!

Researchers reached that surprising conclusion after taking the body measurements of 1,400 women and then examining the amount of tension in their lives.

"We found that a chronic feeling of stress was highly correlated with a so-called 'paunch' " said Dr. Per Bjorntorp.

Stress triggers release of an increased amount of the hormone cortisol, which causes a build up of fat around abdominal area, he explained. It also boosts blood pressure, raises blood sugar and increases the risk of getting cardiovascular disease and ulcers.

"Females typically accumulate fat on their hips and buttocks while males accumulate fat on their bellies," said Dr. William Castelli.

"So the findings by Dr. Bjorntorp that stress can cause fat accumulation on women's bellies like men is both surprising and interesting."

Here are some tips that can help women beat stress and prevent potbellies, according to Dr. Lambert Zilberstein:

- When pressure builds, take a mini-break. Go for a short walk, or just duck into the bathroom for a few minutes to wash your face.
- Hang pictures of tranquil scenes around your home and work area. Look at them and imagine yourself in the restful setting.
- Don't keep your troubles pent up inside you. Confide your stressful feelings to your spouse, a trusted friend or co-worker.
- Clip jokes or cartoons from newspapers and magazines then tape them to your refrigerator, kitchen wall or around your work area.
- While you're on the phone, stand up and walk back and forth.

Added Dr. Zilberstein: "Even mild exercise helps to combat stress."

MY AMERICA

RICH FOLKS DESERVE BETTER MEDICAL CARE — THEY EARNED IT!

fuss about medical care in America.

I'm so mad, in fact, that I'm going to go out on a limb and be the first newspaper columnist in the country to tell it like it really is:

Normal God-fearing, hardworking, American-born citizens have plenty of medical care. In plain English, 95 percent of Americans go to their own doctor when they get sick and pay him modest to really darn well.

If they end up in the hospital, health insurance picks up the bill. It's that simple folks. So matter what kind of bogeyman Hillary and Bill try to feed you.

The average working American can feel free to get sick, because he or she wants and not fear any financial punch. People who work get complete medical insurance. People who [illegible]

People who work and save money can pay the family doctor for treatment. People who don't work can't pay a family doctor so it's fair to say they won't treat them, because doctors don't work for free.

I've tried to make this as clear as I can so even the stupid liberals can understand it, but it's pending hearts are going to keep throwing their crap into the medical care thing. I've got an idea that might do the trick.

First, we might to make doctors post their medical school grades on the wall right beside those fancy diplomas. That way, we could start a system where medical razzmatazz counts, not just grade average.

For example, a doctor who graduated with a average of med. school would get $40 for an office visit. A numbnuts with a D average would only get $10 a visit.

Every doctor's office or clinic would have the average grade of its doctor or doctors posted in big block letters on a sign outside.

If you were good at bridge you

. . . wait'll Congress gets a load of this health plan

PAYDAY! Americans should get the grade "A" doctors, as shown at left, and people with no money should be consigned to the grade "D" doctors, right would know you'd get a [illegible] doctor to see you.

If you were better off, you could go to an A or B doctor for better care at a higher cost.

If you needed an operation and didn't have insurance, you'd wind up under a D doctor's knife. Risky, but better than nothing.

I don't care if my rate of insurance goes up, I want that doctor, especially a doctor in the better be

Let's give the Ed Anger "Medical Grade Point Average Plan" a chance to work before we slam it. Only 15 percent of every working American's hard-earned paycheck is put aside to help illegal aliens and welfare bums in big-bucks hospitals every time they get their owl.

ED ANGER'S HEALTH PLAN POLL

☐ YES. I agree with Ed Anger that doctors should be forced to display their medical school grade averages and charge accordingly so every American can get the health care he deserves.

☐ NO. I think we should adopt the liberals' health care idea so hardworking Americans can pay through the nose to treat illegal aliens and lazy welfare bums.

Plotting revenge is GOOD for you!

Feel like getting revenge? Then daydream about it, says an expert. Getting back at your enemies — even in fantasy — gives you a boost.

"It's a healthy release that helps you get through tense moments — without doing anything that could get you in trouble," explains New York City psychologist Judith Meyerowitz.

"Say you're kept awake at night by jocks in cars playing their radio loudly as they pass your house.

"You could fantasize revenge by having the chance to lock them in a room for 24 hours with nothing to do — except listen to Mozart records!

"Or perhaps a car passes you on the highway going at high speed.

"You could imagine that you could make their tire go flat further down the road, that they have no jack, their spare tire is deflated — all as a bad neighborhood!"

Dr. Meyerowitz passed out that fantasies like these are a lot better than holding in your anger.

"Not getting revenge — and not thinking about it — can lead to high blood pressure, migraine headaches, stomach indigestion, heartburn, ulcers, colitis and nerve.

"Not doing anything about something that upsets you often leads to a loss of self-esteem because you feel powerless.

"But fantasizing about revenge restores that sense of power. You feel as if you're in control of the situation."

Pregnant woman gets stock tips from her unborn baby!

By TANYA BRODER

NEW YORK CITY – Super-successful stockbroker Linda McDemeter has finally revealed the secret of her investment strategy: She listens to her unborn baby — and follows his advice when she plays the stock market!

She's made $1 million — in four months!

The 31-year-old single mom says she's made more than $1 million in the last months since she has listened to her baby's "tips" with a stethoscope. She's doing so well with her investments she says that she'll be able to stay home with her baby full time when he's born in early May.

"I was really having a hard time, making all the wrong investment decisions and losing money right and left. The money to be made!

"I was worried because I had my baby coming and I'd just quit my job at a Wall Street firm.

"One day I realized that when I pored over the stock quotations, my unborn child was always quite active. I thought maybe I was tense and this was disturbing the baby. I was concerned about his health."

Linda bought a stethoscope to listen to her baby's heart beat — and found the secret to financial success.

She discovered that the heart rate of her unborn child increased dramatically when she read details about certain stocks in the newspaper.

"The baby would start kicking like crazy and his heart would beat [illegible]

Linda said, "One day I heard all the news on a stock he got excited about. Just for the heck of it

"Bad Luck Stuck With Me... Until I Discovered The Secret Of The Magnetic North Stone Jewelry."

M. Morin, Montpellier

Discover FOR FREE

... the astonishing secret that let Mr. Morin, as well as 1,314,568 other people over the past 65 years, lead happy lives. Lives full of luck, success, and fulfillment.

Do you think you have problems?

I remember a time when nothing was working out for me or for my family. I had family problems. Neither I nor my wife could find a job. My children were having difficulties at school. And as for my luck—well, I'd never won a cent in the lottery or any other game. I remember how hard it was making it through the end of each month. Believe me, I know what it's like having bad luck cling to you.

Yet today, everything is going well. I've found a good job as a draftsmaster. My two children are doing well in their studies. Plus, I've made some big wins at various games of chance. I also miraculously escaped from a near-fatal accident.

What is the origin me first ask you another question. Do you think that I'm the kind of guy who buys products or good-luck charms?

Let me assure you I am not. In fact, I've always been very skeptical of charms and easy ways of arousing good luck or winnings at the lottery or other games of chance.

And I regret the very week I heard about the legendary Magnetic North Stone.

I made an investigation...

...and learned that thousands of men and women since 1910 (more precisely 1,314,568 people through today), suddenly became lucky the moment they began wearing a piece of jewelry on which the Magnetic North Stone was mounted.

They won in the lottery and at other games. Often huge amounts. They received unexpected money. Plus, they benefited from fortunate events involving their work, their love lives, their health, etc. Generally, their entire lives were transformed for the better.

I admit I was disturbed by these facts. I wanted to know more, to try and understand the mysterious powers of the Magnetic North Stone.

I learned that each person, from the day of birth, is influenced by the earth's magnetic influences—both day and night. In fact, the entire surface of the earth is magnetized. The earth is like a huge natural magnet, with the North Magnetic Pole as the positive end and the South Magnetic Pole as the negative end. Between these two poles, there are magnetic lines of force.

Enlargement of a portion of a fragment of the Magnetic North Stone. The magnetic radiation is clearly visible on Kirlian's photograph.

charges a magnetic field of varying intensity and is constantly under the influence of the earth's magnetic fields.

I discovered that people with problems, lacking in luck, or unable to achieve success for success in their lives, generally lack magnetism. Inevitably, people who attract luck and money—people who can take success for granted—have lots of magnetism.

It has now been scientifically proven that a lack of magnetism negatively affects your life. It has also been scientifically proven that the simple act of wearing a magnetic piece of jewelry enhances your magnetism and positively affects your behavior — and has you achieve success in your life.

Magnetism. It's like electricity. It's physics. It is observable and quantifiable. Professor Kirlian was the first to photograph the magnetic radiation of the Magnetic North Stone. This intense magnetic radiation is easily visible in Kirlian's photos (see photo below.)

The North Stone has been taken and directly engraved from the most magnificent spot on Earth: you guessed it, the Magnetic North Pole in Kiruna Vaara, Lapland, Sweden. The North Stone is actually a piece of the same substance that makes up the magnetic North Pole. Its natural magnetism is totally safe and very potent. It to as 24 hours a day.

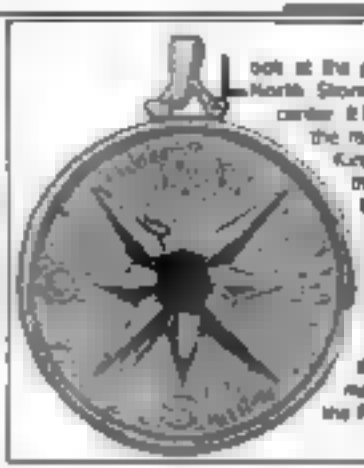
We are now able to measure this magnetism. Furthermore, many scientists have made numerous discoveries over the past decade. These discoveries explain how magnetism can have a positive effect on us. Still, they remain completely unable to explain why people who wear magnetic jewelry from the North Stone benefit so variously from a multitude of positive changes in their lives. But one thing is certain: pieces of jewelry set with the Magnetic North Stone have been cherished since 1930. More than a million people across the globe (1,314,586 individuals, to be exact) have placed their confidence in them — and were happy they did so.



Look at the pendant on which a Magnetic North Stone has been mounted in the center. It has been directly imported from the most magnetic region on Earth: Kalyna Veera, in direction [illegible] to the Magnetic North Poles. Each Magnetic North Stone is mounted on beautiful jewelry that has been plated in genuine gold, by specialized craftsmen.

It has brought much luck to Mr. Maric, as well as 1,314,586 others, for more than 60 years. If you act quickly, you can try a magnetic pendant risk-free (see the Free Coupon below).

Also, the trial was free!

I asked myself "Could so many internationally renowned scientists and experts all be wrong? Could 1,314,586 people over the past 60 years be mistaken?"

So I made a decision. I mailed the Free Coupon." I had absolutely nothing to lose because I like you. If you were not able to try my pendant out with the Magnetic North Stone for free. The guarantee read "If you do not quickly benefit from an apparently lucky event, just return your jewelry set with the Magnetic North Stone and the trial will have cost you absolutely nothing."

When I received my pendant with the Magnetic North Stone, I was awe struck by its dazzling beauty. It was magnificent. Each Magnetic North Stone is cut and mounted on a setting plated in genuine pure gold by specialized craftsmen.

I keep my jewelry with the Magnetic North Stone on me. The first time I put it around my neck, I felt a strange sensation within me. I felt as if a protective presence had been established around me.

Over the next few days, problems I had been having worked themselves out. The effects of the Magnetic North Stone were unbelievable. I am very happy to say that life finally felt good as it should be. My wife and two children wear the Magnetic North Stone and are just as enthusiastic about it as I am.

My wife found work. She says she owes all her success to the Magnetic North Stone. My two children are doing very well in their studies and never go to school without the Magnetic North Stone around their necks.

I gave one to my brother-in-law who was unemployed. He now has a good job and a great family life.

As for [illegible] of course, I've had some excellent winnings.

And then I had a serious accident—and survived. I am certain that I would no longer be of this earth without the Magnetic North Stone. I felt a presence as

I felt that presence like a physical presence. Plus, there has been other evidences of an [illegible] nature. I wouldn't part with my North Stone jewelry today for anything in the world. And I always wear it around my neck.

Who have I decided to tell the story? I would like others who have not been so lucky around money, and those who would like their luck to improve in general, to discover this others to see for yourself to help themselves achieve the positive changes they want in their lives. A way that has been successfully tested over the past 60 years.

The Magnetic North Stone creates a new charge of positive magnetic energy and a magnetic zone of protection around those who wear it. The Magnetic North Stone provides effective protection against the kinds of negative events and negative influences that often impact you in subtle ways—without you even knowing it. This, to our knowledge, is the only scientifically proven method of attracting luck, money, success, and is generally positive life.

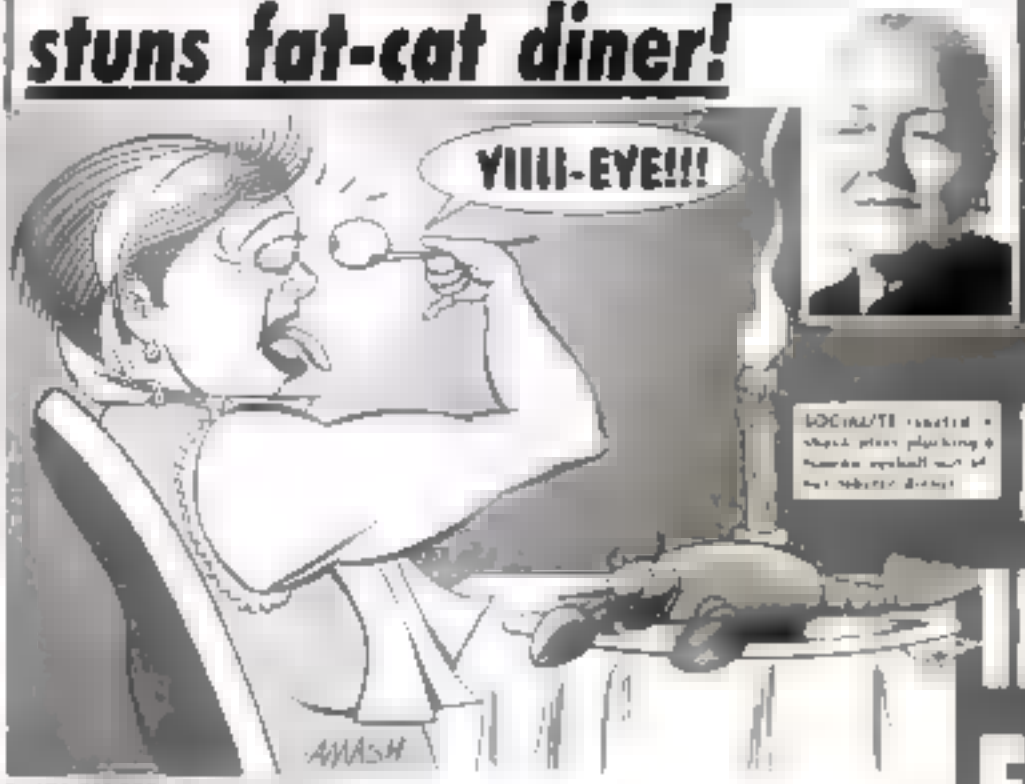
Bizarre 'secret' ingredient stuns fat-cat diner!

WOMAN FINDS HUMAN EYEBALL IN RITZY EATERY'S LOBSTER!



By JOE BERGER

PARIS — Snooty socialite Francoise deBonnet was dining in one of Europe's ritziest restaurants when she poked a fork into her piping-hot lobster thermidor — and pulled out a human eyeball!

Now, fat cat Francoise is suing the elegant Le Chalet Basque eatery for a whopping $1.9 million, claiming she's lost all interest in eating since getting an eyeful of the errant eyeball.

And the shaken lady claims she can't sleep because disembodied eyeballs keep dancing through her dreams.

"I used to enjoy food, and dining out with my friends was my favorite pastime," said Francoise, 59-year-old widow of wealthy international financier Henri deBonnet. "But now I don't enjoy eating at all, because every time I take a bite, I imagine I'm biting into an eyeball."

The stuffed matron's stomach-turning tale began the night of February 14 when she met three moneybags pals for a seven-course dinner at the chic eatery on the outskirts of Paris.

"Everything was going fine and the meal was superb as usual — right up to the time I dug into my lobster thermidor," retired Francoise told reporters.

"I stuck my fork into the sauce and speared a chunk of meat and had the thing almost up to my mouth before I realized it was a big eyeball staring at me.

"I don't remember much after that, but they tell me I let out a shriek and fainted dead away."

Friends called police and health inspectors to examine the eyeball still impaled on her fork. "It was definitely a human eyeball — there's no doubt about that," said dumbfounded police detective Paul Rigaire. "Now we're trying to find out where it came from and how it got into the lady's food. No one who works in the restaurant and no one who was eating there is missing an eyeball, so it's turning into a real mystery."

And shook-up chef Michel Balentine, who manages the world-renowned restaurant, said: "I have no idea how that eyeball got into the lobster thermidor. We have our suppliers keep their eyeballs in place, so I can't imagine where it came from," said mystified Michel. "And I can't imagine how it wound up on that poor lady's plate.

"Needless to say, we don't normally put eyeballs in our lobster thermidor."

Vodka & tonic voted America's No.1 drink

Vodka and tonic is the most requested drink across the U.S., according to the American Bartenders' Association.

The second-most-requested drink is gin and tonic, followed by rum and Coke, Bloody Mary, beer, Chablis wine and margaritas (tied for sixth place), martinis and Manhattans (another tie), whiskey and water, Scotch and soda, and screwdrivers.

Should I tell my sister her new hubby is gay?

AMERICA'S MOST OUTSPOKEN ADVICE COLUMNIST

JERSEY — New Jersey

Dear Dotti: After a whirlwind romance, my 25-year-old sister decided to marry a man she met at work. Brenda is the prettiest woman in the world and she's always been on the heavy side, so I was really happy for her. At least I was happy until I went to her fiance's bachelor party — and watched in horror as a naked MAN jumped out of his cake.

At first I thought it was a joke that Bryan proceeded to pass the guy and I quickly realized that both of them were gay! I had a camera and snapped a few pictures. But I didn't have the heart to tell Brenda and now she's married to the guy. This is really bothering me, Dotti. Should I spill the beans — or not? — Jerry in New Jersey

Here sign by sign, Palmer explains the personality tr each sign and how they relate to stress — and Dr. Koenig his advice.

ARIES (MARCH 21 – APRIL 19)

You're irritable and impatient and tend to lose your temper easily," said Palmer, author of a well-known series of books on astrology, including the yearly horoscope almanac. "You rush through life eager to conquer the world, as you want everything done quickly — and if it isn't you get antsy."

STRESS-BUSTER: Don't overbook or overplan your days. Instead, take a leisurely activity every day that you can shift your attention to when stress begins to arise.

Set realistic goals and don't procrastinate or you'll end up frustrated and disappointed in yourself. Don't bury your head in the sand. Take advantage of the free time to make out a grocery list, pay your bills or get something else done," said Dr. Koenig.

TAURUS (APRIL 20 – MAY 20)

Easy-going, quiet and patient, you do everything slowly and methodically. You hold in your emotions and let tensions build up until you are ready to explode."

STRESS-BUSTER: Ask yourself what's bothering you and you will be surprised at how many problems disappear.

Try to express your feelings BEFORE you get angry.

Also, don't try to take on more than you can handle. Learn to say "no" to others when you're too busy.

GEMINI (MAY 21 – JUNE 20)

Simple ideas tense and anxious and you are easily frustrated. You let little things bother you until you feel you're losing control — and you become a prime candidate for stress."

STRESS-BUSTER: Try to plan ahead and get more rest in your life.

Simple, common problems get you all worked up. When you begin to feel stressed, ask yourself: Is this problem really worth getting upset about? Will it matter in a week, a month or a year? Usually, you'll find the answer is no.

■ Make time to get started. Don't postpone starting until you think you'll have enough time to finish the entire project. Setting aside even five minutes to get yourself going will inspire you to complete your task.

■ Picture the payoff. Get yourself fired up by focusing on how great you're going to feel once your project is completed.

■ Get help to overcome problems. If you need help, ask for it. Successful people know how to make use of the talents of others.

■ Publicize your intentions. Tell your spouse, friends and co-workers what you intend to do and you'll be more apt to follow through and save face.

Why do UFOs fly over my house every night?

Will in Oregon

Dear Serena: You probably won't believe this, but UFOs fly over my house every night. I'm not talking about some little blinking lights in the sky.

I'm talking about saucer-shaped starships that are 60 to 80 feet in diameter and fly at treetop level. Please tell me what's going on, Serena. And please let me know if I'm in danger. — Will in Oregon

Dear Will: Space aliens have set up a temporary base less than a mile from your home. They plan to leave next month. Meanwhile, you're not in danger. These gentle beings are incapable of causing humans harm. They're just curious.

Dear Serena: My Dad still has a mouth full of mercury fillings from the 1940s and 1950s. I read they can cause sicknesses and mental and emotional instability. That might be what's been wrong with Dad all these years. He hasn't been right since I was a kid — and the older he gets, the worse he gets. Wild mood swings. A volatile temper. Forgetfulness. You name it. I may be grasping at straws, but I have to ask. Is the mercury in Dad's mouth making him crazy? — Chris in Virginia

Chris in Virginia

Dear Chris: It's not the mercury causing your Dad's problems — it's the cookies. I know this comes as a shock. But your Dad has been an alcoholic since he was in his 20s. On a positive note, I can just feel that the two of you have a heart-to-heart conversation so will, for the first time in his life, admit that he has a problem and get the help he so desperately needs. In keeping with that, I have extended my Spell of Family Harmony and Strength to help you with God bless you.

Dear Serena: Can you tell me where my cat is? We discovered seven weeks ago and I'm worried sick. It's not like him to be gone for more than a few days. Please advise. — Concerned in Arizona

Dear Concerned: A spotlight who lives right behind blocks away from you has been taking very good care of your cat but he's going to return to you shortly. Expect to find him on your doorstep between 2 and 3 a.m. next Thursday.

Dear Serena: Every night I dream that my husband dies. After he passed, I move back home with my parents and fall in love with a childhood friend. I love my husband dearly, and the dream is scaring me to death. What does it mean? I feel so guilty when I wake up that I think I'm going to go insane. — Vanessa in Maine

Vanessa in Maine

Dear Vanessa: The meaning of your dreams is really quite simple. You're clinging to the past because you are afraid of growing older. I peered into your future and see that you will soon resolve this conflict. When you do, you will stop having this dream — and find the contentment that you deserve.

Dear Serena: A few months ago I met Elvis Presley in a diner near my home and after a whirlwind romance he asked me to be the most. I love him with all my heart, Serena, but I'm not so sure marriage is the best thing for us. As you probably know, Elvis has been in failing health for about his death in 1977. If we become husband and wife, I'll have to live in hiding. Let me know what you think. — Undecided in Oklahoma

Dear Undecided: The man you speak of is not — I repeat — NOT Elvis Presley. The King is dead. My crystal ball reveals this individual is a con man who plans to take you for every penny you've got. Stop seeing him now — before it's too late.

Dear Serena, I think you're the greatest psychic ever. The thing is, I've written to two of them and have never gotten an answer. My problem — money troubles — was solved when I won a $25,000 lottery jackpot using the lucky numbers on your horoscope page. My question now is, why haven't you answered my letters? — Sally in Florida

SALLY in Florida

Dear Sally: Each week I receive 3,000 to 10,000 letters and I simply can't answer them all. I do pray and meditate over ALL of them and try my best to bring luck and good fortune to everyone.

BIGFOOT ROAMING THE WILDS — WITH A HUMAN CHILD!

By MIKE FOSTER / World World Staff

VANCOUVER, Canada — Excited researchers are combing the wilds of British Columbia in response to recent sightings of Bigfoot accompanied by a blond-haired boy!

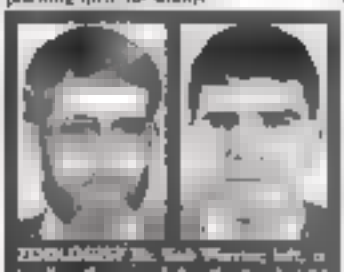
More than two dozen people claim to have seen the human youngster dressed in animal skins and loping along beside the towering man-beast. Investigators speculate that the mystery boy may be the missing survivor of a plane crash that occurred in the area 11 years ago, raised from childhood by Bigfoot.

"This is the most tantalizing development in Bigfoot research to take place in decades," said Dr. Bob Warner, a zoologist involved in the hunt for the elusive forest creature.

"It suggests that Bigfoot is not some shambling monster as he is often depicted, but a gentle and intelligent being capable of nurturing behavior and compassion."

The boy, described by eyewitnesses as lean and wiry with long, matted hair, was first spotted in late March by dentist Dr. Arthur Gosden who was camping in the Rockies with his family.

The Vancouver man was awakened in the early morning by the frantic cries of his 12 year old daughter. When he emerged from his tent, he saw her pointing into the woods.



ZOOLOGIST Dr. Bob Warner, left, is leading the search for Bigfoot and the mysterious boy. Dr. Arthur Gosden, right, claims to have seen the pair.

Researchers believe boy is baby who survived '89 plane crash!

"She said that a wild boy was stealing our food," Dr. Gosden recalls. "I looked where she was pointing and saw this half-naked boy dashing off into the trees with an armful of coconut pods."

Shouting after the child, Dr. Gosden gave chase and caught up with him at the edge of a clearing.

"I couldn't believe my eyes. The boy was standing next to an enormous, hairy, man-like creature at least 8 feet tall," Dr. Gosden said. "The thing took some of the boy's food, bore they scattered all together into the woods, both of them walking with the same hunched-over, ape-like stride."

Since that sighting, at least 23 people have reported seeing the wild boy and his hairy companion. Witnesses have included clergymen, forest rangers and even members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

In many cases, the encounters also have been heard contemporaneous guttural sounds as if talking.

"This youngster has all the earmarks

Warner. "The fact that he got a stealer to the Bigfoot and that they can communicate is evidence that the creature is his surrogate parent."

Researchers believe that the wild-boy sightings may be connected to the 1989 crash of a private plane carrying a party of French tourists visiting the region. The crash left the pilot and four passengers dead — including young mother Madeleine Dumoire.

Madeleine's baby Marcel was missing and the remains of the 3 year-old infant were never found.

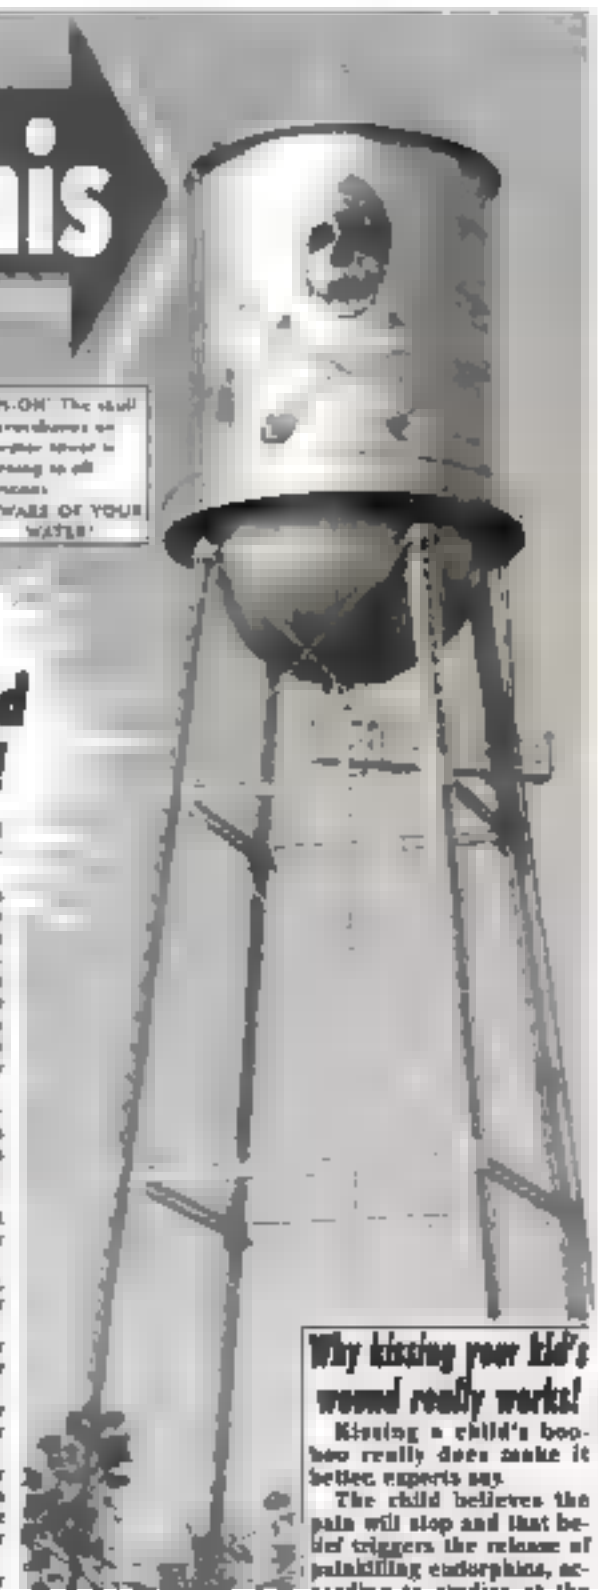
TOP SECRET REPORT

One drink of this can kill you!



H'OH-OH! The skull and crossbones on this water tower is a warning to all Americans: BEWARE OF YOUR WATER!

America's water supply is brimming with pollutants that cause cancer, infertility, birth defects — and even death!

WASHINGTON — America's water supply is contaminated with hundreds of deadly pollutants that can cause cancer, birth defects, infertility and other health problems, according to a shocking new study.

But you can safeguard your family from dirty water by taking a few simple precautions recommended by environmental experts.

"This nation's water is far more polluted than the average citizen suspects," declared Kim Breedland, a Washington-based environmental activist.

"You have to protect yourself."

Last year, the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) conducted the most extensive study of the nation's waters since 1973, according to Breedland.

"And the results were so frightening that the EPA report has been 'deep-sixed.'"

There he says, are some of the most shocking facts:

☠ At least 65 percent of the nation's rivers, lakes and streams are "dangerously polluted."

☠ The typical reservoir contains so much industrial waste — such as pesticides, PCBs and detergents — that "even a single drop has the potential of delivering multiple carcinogens."

☠ Sex hormones used in animal husbandry end up in the water and are responsible for "at least 35 percent of human infertility."

☠ In states such as New Mexico, where many nuclear tests have been conducted, there remains so much radioactive material in many streams and lakes that fish literally glow in the dark.

Fortunately, protecting yourself from deadly chemicals is easy, said Breedland.

He suggests that all consumers take one or more of the following steps.

• Drink bottled water, ideally from Canada or Montana.

• Boil your tap water for at least 15 minutes before drinking.

• Never drink more than eight glasses of water a day.

• Test your water by placing a goldfish in a gallon container for one week — if it dies, the water is not safe to drink.

• If your water has any

'GIMME SIX!'

WITNESS: Engineer Godfrey Hill has six fully formed fingers on each hand

When it comes to fingers, this guy's got both hands full!

NOTTINGHAM, England — When Godfrey Hill decides to give you a hand, he really gives you a HAND — one with six fingers on it!

Doctors say the good-natured retired engineer might well be the only one alive in the entire world today with 12 fully formed fingers — six on each hand.

To Godfrey, it's no big deal, but others have some pretty far-fetched ideas about him.

"When I travel to other countries, I get some pretty funny looks," he says.

"I've been branded a witch doctor, a voodoo cultist — even a space alien."

bartering with a shop owner in the market place, when the man noticed his hands.

"He exclaimed, 'The Hand of Fatima!' and before I knew it, I was surrounded by scores of Arabs wanting to see 'the Messiah.'

"I was able to wrangle a good deal from the shop owner, but I was glad to get away from the crowd."

Godfrey, who is now enjoying his eighties, is still conscious about his unique hands. He even gets up with some gentle teasing from his wife, Joy, who is always telling him he should have been a pianist or a guitar player.

Doctors call Godfrey's condition hexadactyly. And historically, he's in some pretty high-born company. Historians say that Henry VIII's second wife, Anne Boleyn, was also hexadactylic. Her enemies said the extra digit was a sign that she was in cahoots with the Devil, and many people believed it.

MAN MUMMIFIES WIFE'S BODY IN KITTY LITTER!

MOURNING HUSBAND: Donald Fredaunton

By LISA MEEKER / Weekly World News

PORTLAND, Ore. — Grieving hubby Donald Fredaunton can't bear to live without his wife Alice, so he plans to keep her forever in their two-bedroom suburban home — in her coffin, mummified in kitty litter!

"She's too beautiful to bury, even in death, and I can't imagine putting her in the ground," says Fredaunton, 57. "I want her with me.

"The kitty litter is so dry and absorbent that in a month or two more, she should be completely mummified. Then I'll be able to have her right in my living room, beside the couch where we used to watch TV."

"LYING IN PEACE: Alice Fredaunton's preserved body lies in her coffin

Fredaunton and his wife had been married for 30 years when Alice died of a stroke in February at the age of 58. The couple were childless and devoted to each other, and had never been apart in all their years as man and wife.

'She's too

So when a funeral home suggested Fredaunton have his wife's body embalmed and buried, the hardware store owner was horrified. He says he called officials and got special permission to keep his wife's body in his house.

"Alice was such a vital person, such a ball of fire — I just couldn't imagine her lying inside a dark coffin deep in the earth," he recalled.

"To me, it was a truly shocking idea.

"So I knew that I had to do something so she wasn't a health hazard or anything. That's when I got the kitty litter idea."

Fredaunton had the hospital deliver his wife's body to his home and constructed a simple wooden box to put her in. He said he'd sleep in the box, dressed in her best outfit, and placed her in the back of the garage where she would be cool and dry.

Next, Fredaunton bought a dozen large bags of kitty litter and tenderly dumped them over Alice's body. The heap of white granules covered her corpse entirely and Fredaunton plans to leave Alice that way for several more months, until the moisture in her body is completely absorbed.

"Then I'm going to dust her off and display her real nice, right in the corner of the living room," the loving widower said.

"She would like that — being here with me instead of all alone in some graveyard."

He plans to display her in the living room!

Skeletons found in B-24 bomber that crashed in Amazon jungle in 1944!

By JUNE SAWYER — World Wide News

RIO DE JANEIRO — The remains of 10 Americans were recovered from the wreckage of a B-24 bomber that crashed in a remote section of the Amazon jungle in 1944.

Military searchers trudged through 250 miles of dangerous uncharted jungle filled with poisonous snakes, savage animals, insects and fierce underbrush to reach the wrecked World War II plane in the northern Brazilian state of Amapa.

After 14 days of digging and blasting the swamps and with high-powered saws, the searchers recovered human fragments and 11 teeth.

They dug down several meters and were starting to lose hope when they found pieces, rings, necklaces and dog tags with names and ranks on them, said Ferdinando Allegretti, a spokesman for the Amapa international affairs department.

Mugger beaten to a pulp by two transvestites!

NICE, France — Purse snatcher Daniel Prochin landed in the hospital after he attacked two "ladies" on the street — and discovered to his horror that they were burly men dolled up as women!

The gussied-up guys were stifling a cigarette outside their favorite bar when the mugger approached and tried to swipe a purse belonging to one of them. Before the swag-ger knew what hit him, the make believe belles swung into action and beat him to a pulp with their fists.

Moments later police arrived on the scene and rushed dazed Daniel, 21, off to a hospital to be treated for a concussion and broken ribs.

WILL HILLARY DU
BILL THIS YEAR?

Guess right and win a whopping $1,000

Will First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton divorce her straying husband, President Bill Clinton, before a year is out? Guess the answer to that burning question and you could win a whopping one thousand dollars!

That's right, Weekly World News is sponsoring an exciting new contest that lets average Americans weigh in on the issue that has Washington insiders all abuzz. And best of all, you don't have to purchase anything to enter.

Since the Monica Lewinsky sex scandal first broke, rumors have been sweeping the nation's capital that Mrs Clinton is fed up with being publicly humiliated by the skirt-chasing Chief Executive and has decided to pull the plug on their marriage.

Political analysts and strategists of both parties are convinced that Hillary will dump Bill — but they disagree considerably on the timing.

Some pundits predict that the First Lady will wait until the President leaves office, then quietly file for divorce. Others insist that the much-put-upon Hillary is so unhappy that she can't hold out that long and will split from her husband within the next few months.

The guessing game is the latest pastime in our nation's capital — and now, NEWS readers can get in on the fun.

Simply fill out the entry blank on this page, telling us when you think Hillary will divorce Bill. Then send it to our offices. When Mrs Clinton files divorce papers — or if the next Inauguration Day rolls around and the couple is still legally — we'll draw the letters at random. The first correct entry drawn will receive a check for $1,000 from Weekly World News.

Hurry up and get in on the action before someone else wins the big bucks!

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH CAN BE YOURS

Glowing report: "The recent discovery of a new natural protein complex may have led to a major breakthrough in health and aging", declared a research chemist at the National Institute of Aging – a branch of the U.S. Government's National Institutes of Health. "It's a most exciting finding and it promises today's teenage girl the prospect of going to pieces in her eighties and nineties."

The new discovery has a double effect. One, it can help people "heal up" in the place damaged by intensified sun activities and living in the city. Two – besides the energy support and stress down the aging process – we can now just like a magic tea and a healthier life. And in my opinion it's perfectly safe and has no side effects. Top doctors and scientists say:

According to a New York medical newspaper and various specialists "Elderly people up there don't look like they're in their 30's, while people in their 30's don't look like they're in their 40's."

An Italian physician and former director of physical health services in the Ontario Regional Hospital reports that he has found an "absence of pimples and no marked wrinkles".

A doctor of "therapeutic medicine" at the International Academy of Preventive Medicine, said: "I have used it on over 1,000 persons. Within weeks people begin to feel healthier and younger. Wrinkles and age spots actually disappear and they've also found that their hair starts to disappear and their scientific mind thinking younger. That old face with the wise and kind brother breaks out glad and more youthful. It is why this miracle we call aging vanishes and stays down dangerously."

Scientists believe the secret is a special natural element and chemical found that can prevent and retard the effects of the aging process and actually reverse the aging and diseases process.

An organic source and world authority on nutrition explains how with what we can substitute – not do for us by saying "It's a miracle compound. You can literally have back the looks of your wife the day you married."

The new discovery is being marketed under the trade name RELUVENAL and can be ordered directly from UNIVERSAL INTERNATIONAL, Dept. RN-81, P.O. Box 4481, Delray Beach, FL 33484. "It was not very surprising since we ate as much [illegible] but once we convinced them it was for their own good, they cooperated up to a point," recalled team leader Dr. Emmanuel Cruz. FACE ON MARS FOUND ON 4,000-YEAR-OLD EGYPTIAN COIN!

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

LUXOR, Egypt — Excited scientists have unearthed an ancient Egyptian coin with the mysterious stone face on Mars emblazoned on it — and experts say the discovery proves that extraterrestrials visited our planet 4,000 years ago!

"The face etched on this coin is identical in every respect to the nine-hundred face on Mars," said astonished archaeologist and historian Dr. Osmond Dumas. "But modern man, even with the powerful telescopes available today, was totally unaware the face existed until America's Viking space probe photographed it in 1976. So I can think of no way the Egyptians could have reproduced it so faithfully unless they had help — and I mean help from another world."

The Australian scientist and six colleagues uncovered the gold coin April 2 in the Valley of the Kings, less than a mile from the spot where King Tut's tomb was discovered in 1922.

Tests have determined that the remarkable artifact dates back to the reign of colorful King Amenemhat I, who ruled Egypt around 2000 B.C.

"The face on Mars is ... ever seen — very different from the hieroglyphics of that period," Dr. Dumas said.

"We've circulated copies of the inscriptions to experts around the world in an attempt to determine its origin, but they are as stumped as we are. And that makes me even more certain that the coin was brought to Earth by extraterrestrials or produced here with the aid of extraterrestrials." And in galaxy-hopping vagabonds from another planet did visit Earth 4,000 years ago, their presence could answer one of the greatest riddles of all times — how primitive Egyptians managed to build the architectural marvels known as the Great Pyramids.

"To assemble the materials and build those pyramids with such precision hardly seems possible for a people with the limited capabilities of the ancient Egyptians," Dr. Dumas said. "But for beings advanced enough to travel here from the farthest reaches of space, building a few pyramids was probably a breeze."

Gentlemen really DO prefer blondes

By KELLY TURNER · Enquirer World Affairs

Men really do prefer blondes — because blondes look younger, reflect a childlike innocence and radiate goodness, experts reveal.

"Men like younger-looking women, and blondes look younger," said psychologist Rita Freedman.

"One in four American women are busy blondes, but only 1 percent remain so after puberty.

"One way to look younger is simply to stay blonde longer. It brings out a woman's more youthful appearance.

"Blondes also fit men's childlike, dependent fantasies — something most men find very appealing. Like Marilyn Monroe or Brigette Bardot. The blonde is a baby doll, a ripe fruit or an innocent alpo."

Fairy tales read to children also play a part in making blondes more desirable.

"Blondes remind men of the good angel or goddess from childhood stories and mythology and this appeals to them.

"In childhood stories, the princess always had golden locks, the angel a halo of blonde curls.

"Men see the blonde as the embodiment of the good, pure, unattainable woman."

There's a symbiosis and thrift to catching boy "Also blondes owe themselves as more glamorous — so they project that image and others respond to them in that way."

PIZZA INVENTED BY ANCIENT GREEKS

. . . NOT Italians, say experts!

PIZZA PIES were used for discus throwing as well as eating.

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

ATHENS — The pizza wasn't invented in Italy, it originated in ancient Greece — and the first Olympic discus throw was actually a pizza-tossing contest!

That's the startling conclusion of noted Greek researcher and scholar Dr. Costas Diamantides, who claims his countrymen were whipping up piping-hot pizzas as early as 900 B.C.

"These documents discovered over the past five years paint a fascinating picture of Athenian eating halls, or restaurants, where customers dined on a delicacy almost identical to the pizza now eaten around the world," Dr. Diamantides told delegates to an international historical conference here.

"The ancient Greek pizza consisted of a large, round, flat crust made of dough, very similar to the modern-day pizza. It was covered with cheese made from goats' or sheeps' milk and was adorned with a variety of 'toppings,' including olives, lamb, fish, squash and even honey.

"Judging from everything we know now, pizza was quite popular back then — and there is evidence that the great Athenian leader Solon nearly choked to death on a piece of olive-and-lamb pizza around 594 B.C."

Dr. Diamantides, author of the challenging new book Greece: From Homer to Constantine, said the modern-day discus throw evolved from pizza-tossing tournaments staged by the athletic young men who waited tables in ancient Athens.

"They apparently began by tossing dried, leftover pizzas back and forth like Frisbees after work and eventually became competing to see who could throw them the farthest," he said. "And by the time the first Olympic Games were held around 776 B.C., pizza-tossing was such a popular pastime that it was incorporated as one of the first Olympic sports. The use of a metal-rimmed discus didn't evolve until many years later."

The delectable dish later known as pizza didn't make its way to Italy until the Romans conquered Greece in 146 B.C., Dr. Diamantides said.

"Roman soldiers became so fond of Greek pizza that they took the recipe home with them," he said. "And by 34 A.D., Roman restaurants were actually delivering pizzas in fancy chariots, 1,900 years before Domino's dished up its first anchovy."

"I wanted to show my students that they should have a camera nearby and ready at all times," controversial teacher Bill Sinclair said.

Microwave ovens confuse pigeons!

NEVERS, France — Every year, thousands of prize homing pigeons become lost — and experts believe microwave ovens may be to blame for the birdies' bewilderment.

JILTED MAN BLOWS GIRLFRIEND'S CHIHUAHUA TO BITS — WITH A GRENADE!

GUERRILLA is armed with a grenade launcher like the one used by Hans Dorbrecht.

By MIKE FOSTER
Weekly World News

BONN, Germany — In a heartless act of unbelievable cruelty, a soldier who'd been jilted by his girlfriend took revenge by blowing her beloved pet Chihuahua off the face of the Earth — with a rocket-propelled grenade launcher!

'Dog looked like the inside of a taco,' say cops

German army private Hans Dorbrecht, 26, was arrested by MPs and faces a court-martial for removing the powerful weapon from his base without permission.

"That madman took aim at my helpless little Friedrich as he romped on the lawn, gave a weird cackle and then fired," says sobbing Ingrid Schwarzburger, 24, who watched the scene in horror.

"One second Friedrich was happily playing with his chew toy — the next pre-cut bloody chunks of him were flying in all directions."

Ironically, just a day before the animal-abuse outrage, things were going so well between Dorbrecht and his girlfriend that the two lovebirds were discussing marriage.

But the relationship soured when the pint-size pooch playfully nipped Dorbrecht on the backside as he and Ingrid were making love.

Insisting that the animal "never liked me," the furious soldier demanded that Ingrid get rid of her nasty pet. She adamantly refused.

"Hans said to me, 'You love that stupid dog more than me,' Ingrid recalls. "And, somewhat impulsively perhaps, I said, 'Yes, that's right. I do. Get out.'"

The angry army man didn't say another word. He just stormed out through the front door.

The following day, Dorbrecht drove back to Ingrid's home — toting the loaded rocket-propelled launcher.

"When I saw him get out of the jeep and start walking toward Friedrich with that thing on his shoulder, I knew what he was up to and started screaming, 'No! No!'" Ingrid recalls.

But the hotheaded soldier couldn't be deterred. He laughed gleefully, then let it rip — sending a grenade spiraling at the fleeting dog and blasting it to kingdom come.

Military police, who arrested Dorbrecht, say the chihuahua looked like the inside of a taco.

Dorbrecht is charged with misuse of government property and faces up to five years in prison.
